² Fictitious name used in an anonymously produced, pirated version of The Personal Narrative of James O. Pattie, of Kentucky (see in Part 2 of this bibliography: Pattie, 1831 and following).

³ As with the "C. V. Abyssus" psychonym, with which this one appeared, it derives from the scientific name of an animal well known on the Colorado River; in this case the raven, Corvus corax. "Early" is a nickname for Earle Spamer, originated unwittingly by a worker at the Glen Canyon Environmental Studies office during the 1990s and which was perpetuated by Quartaroli.

⁴ The author indicates that his use of the initial "B." is a play on the phonetic "Stephen Be Glad", a personal reflection on life (fide Stephen G. Gladdish).

⁶ Not John Wesley Powell.

⁷ A purposeful misspelling, to repeat an actual misspelling that appeared on the ID token on an award cup.

⁸ As like Quartaroli's use of "C.V." as initials in a pseudonymous name (see note 1), this likewise derives from a taxonomic name; in this case, F. Splendens is derived from the plant Fouquieria splendens, or ocotillo.

⁹ A common form of anonymity.

¹⁰ Not unique; two instances of "X.Y.Z." known in this bibliography.

NAMES CHANGED BY MARRIAGE, DIVORCE OR LEGAL DECREE

The people listed here are those individuals who are cited in THE GRAND CANON by more than one name (not pseudonymous). Marriage names may also represent hyphenated compound names using both birth and marriage names; for each case these are as used by the woman in her publications. Cases where a marriage name precedes a birth name indicate a divorce after which the woman reverted to her birth name. The earlier/later time frames pertain to the dates of publications cited herein.
