FICTION

Fiction for adult audiences that includes the Grand Canyon or the lower Colorado River region

PART 7. FICTION
GRAND CANYON AND LOWER COLORADO RIVER REGIONS

OVERVIEW. This part lists only works of fiction, including folklore and the scripts for plays and other such productions. Some titles may infer the plot is in Grand Canyon, but which really employ the name for its recognizable literary effect. Particular-interest subjects that may be considered by many to be works of fiction—such as those relating to unidentified flying objects (UFOs), ancient Egyptian relics in Grand Canyon, and Creationist topics—are considered to belong either to “General” subjects or to the specific subject to which its subject applies (e.g., geology) and will be found in those other parts of this bibliography. This part includes works written as “historical fiction” and matter that follows a fictional narrator or human character even though the content of the work is factual; this includes scripts for plays and screenplays. Critical analyses of fictional works will be found in Part 2 (GENERAL PUBLICATIONS) of this bibliography.

RELATED MATERIAL

PART 3. THE NEW YORK TIMES for additional items that relate to this part of the bibliography (which are not repeated in this part)
PART 6, SECTION 2. YOUTH—FICTION for young-reader (“juvenile”) fiction

Part 7 includes citations of items that contain potentially offensive material, with sexual or other matter that some users, for religious, moral, or personal reasons, may not wish to encounter. The pertinent citations are grouped in the Supplement at the end of Part 7. It is additionally important to segregate these citations as this is an internationally focused bibliography with an international audience, whose particular perspectives may not be known to this compiler. The cited items themselves may contain explicit material but a few of them do not themselves contain explicit content; yet these, too, are segregated because the serials in which they appear do contain such matter. (Off-color language is not considered reason for segregation.)

(“From an interview by our staff correspondent.”) [In the “interview”, Blivvens is quoted (p. 49), “But undoubtedly the most serious thing before the American public is the gradual erasure of the Grand Canyon. I have laid, or lain, awake many hours thinking of that and trying to find a way to stop it. Dr. Davis of Harvard says that it will eventually be as flat as yesterday’s newspaper. Frankly I don’t like it.” Shortly later, he continues, “But tell me, have you ever seen the Grand Canyon?” The correspondent replies, “No.” “Neither have I, and that’s why I worry about it. If I had had a look at it, it could flatten out any time it pleased.”]

⁴³ Salgari's La Sovrana del Campo d'Oro is often cataloged as a young-reader title, which in essence it is. Although the story includes violent scenes, different editions and translations include illustrations by various artists, some of which one would not consider appropriate for young readers; thus for consistency all are cited with the regular items of fiction in this bibliography. Only one edition is cited herein with the material for young readers (see Salgari, 1982, ITEM NO. 6.1505), a Spanish translation that was especially adapted for young readers.)

[First ed.] [Later printings under this imprint, and printings under other imprints, with frequently redesigned cover art and text illustrations.] [Story takes place in the late 1800s in the Grand Canyon vicinity. "La Sovrana del Campo d'Oro" is the nickname of the lead character, Miss Annie Clayfert. Frequent references to Grand Canyon throughout, and occasionally Marble Canyon, but take note particularly of Chapter 13, "Verso il Gran Cañon"; Chapter 15, "La corriera del «Gran Cañon»"; Chapter 20, "Il «Gran Cañon» del Colorado"; Chapter 23, "Nel fondo del «Gran Cañon»"; and see also illustration, "Per dieci minuti fiancheggiarono la roccia, avanzando adagio, adagio .." ⁴⁴ As is typical of great works of literature, John Steinbeck's Pulitzer prize-winning The Grapes of Wrath has been reprinted, translated, and incorporated into anthologies for decades. For this and other work, Steinbeck was awarded the Nobel Prize in Literature in 1962. The citations here are representative of the breadth of publications that have been produced, though none of the anthologies are cited. Chapter 18 of The Grapes of Wrath pertains to this bibliography. There the family of Dustbowl refugees en route to California passes through northern Arizona by way of Oatman and along the Colorado River in the Topock-Needles area.

SUPPLEMENT TO PART 7

Potentially Offensive Material Cited Separately

Part 7 includes citations of items that contain potentially offensive material, with sexual or other matter that some users, for religious, moral, or personal reasons, may not wish to encounter. The pertinent citations are grouped in this Supplement. It is additionally important to segregate these citations as this is an internationally focused bibliography with an international audience, whose particular perspectives may not be known to this compiler. The cited items themselves may contain explicit material but a few of them do not; yet these, too, are segregated because the serials in which they appear do contain such matter. (Off-color language is not considered reason for segregation.)
